Background

Swing for Sarcoma is a charity golf day created to raise invaluable funds on behalf of the Cooper-Rice Brading foundation (CRBF). The CRBF is a well-established not-for-profit organisation that is about to reach $1M raised with research grants and patient support. The foundation was started by Cooper, a teenager, who at the time was diagnosed with sarcoma and eventually lost his life to this disease.

Sarcoma may be found in all areas of the body, and originate in the connective tissue i.e. bone, ligaments, tendons, cartilage, and adipose (fatty) tissue. Whilst sarcoma may affect all ages, it hits our young disproportionately hard, and is currently the leading cause of cancer related death in Australia in the 14-24 year age group. (AIHW 2022). Further to this, there has been a significant increase identified in the diagnoses of soft tissue sarcomas in the over 60 age group.

A sarcoma can be notoriously difficult to treat and cure, due to its heterogeneous nature. Despite the best efforts of the most brilliant scientific and medical minds globally, treatment options and mortality rates have not significantly changed in over four decades. One of the overriding reasons for this is the dire lack of government funding directed to clinical research, with philanthropy left to fill the gaps.

We intend to use the resources, knowledge and existing partners of the CRBF to help create a memorable golf charity day. In saying that we are looking to bring on board new corporate sponsors who value philanthropic commitment and look to contribute positively to their community.

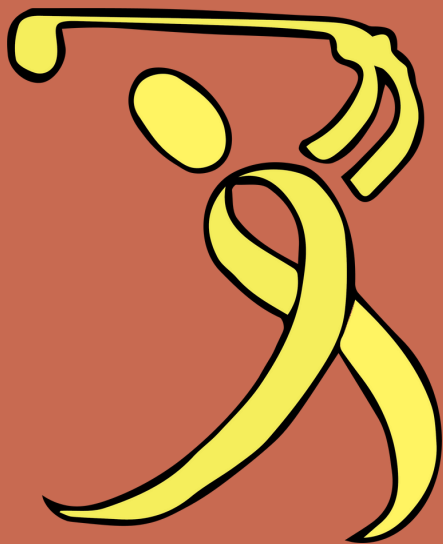

All members involved with starting up this event have been impacted by sarcoma and we are determined to raise funds for the foundation to help support the fantastic work that has been done so far.

Our vision is to create a golf event that is first and foremost a day to raise awareness and funds for the CRBF, but to also bring together people to enjoy a great day out at one of the best golf courses in the Southern Highlands. With your help, money raised will go towards the three pillars of the CRBF.

Three Pillars

- Funding for high level clinical research into a cure for sarcoma
- Raising awareness to encourage early diagnosis in an effort to improve survival outcomes
- Supporting those diagnosed with sarcoma, and their families, throughout treatment and beyond.
